THIS DEDICATING WEEK

By Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman

Chanukah this year will have been appropriately celebrated by the Toronto Jewish community. Two new institutions will have been dedicated during the Chanukah week. Scheuer House, the gift to the Jewish community by friends of Edmund Scheuer in appreciation for his communal service, was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies. The esteem in which Mr. Scheuer is held by Toronto Jews was voiced, and that his character is appreciated by the larger community was indicated by the presence of Sir William Mulock, Chief Justice of Ontario, and the Rev. Dr. Salem G. Bland, distinguished Christian teacher and journalist. Both of these gentlemen came to the dedication without special invitations and paid their tribute to the venerable and venerated Jewish leader. Significant in the establishment of Scheuer House, which is to house the Federation and other social agencies, is the fact that two young leaders took the initiative in securing it, J. I. Oelbaum, the executive director of Federation, and Joseph E. Tarshis.

Another Chanukah dedication will be held next Sunday afternoon when the new gymnasium of the Council of Jewish Women will be formally opened. This gymnasium is the gift of three generous and public-spirited citizens, Charles Draimin, Elly Marks and Percy Hermant, to the Jewish community. The fine girls' work done under the auspices of the Council has long been handicapped by the lack of gymnasium facilities. Now that that obstacle no longer exists, the work of the Council should be greatly advanced.

We are indeed happy to note these two new buildings in our community. They indicate that the Toronto Jewish community is making progress, and that shortly it will have the institutions its importance and size warrants. We hope that the Chanukah spirit will induce some other individuals to emulate the example of the donors of the council gymnasium and provide for a gymnasium for the Boys' Club. This Chanukah has been a real feast of dedication for the Jews of Toronto.

THE FEDERAL COUNCIL OF THE CHURCHES OF CHRIST OF AMERICA HESITATES

We have been following for a number of years the splendid work of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. It is an organization of more than a score of church denominations. Its president for the past few years was the well-known and universally-appreciated Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman. When the federation was first organized, its liberal attitude won for it our respect and admiration. During the steel strike, it realized that Christianity had a message in the arena of industrial disputes, and accordingly it appointed a commission to bring the facts about the steel industry to light. The thorough and unbiased report prepared by that commission which fairly, yet courageously exposed the industrial tyranny and evils which had existed in the steel industry, will long live as one of the significant documents in the history of American churches. That attempts by the industrialists were made first to belittle the steel report, and subsequently to cripple the Federation only indicated the service that that experiment in applied Christianity rendered

THE COMMUNAL TUMULT

To the casual observer Jewish life in the large centers is a constant process of hectic activity. Campaigning for worthy causes is always going on in a major key. And there is the perpetual accompaniment of the din of lesser calls for minor institutions. Federation appeals, Palestine appeals, Talmud Torah appeals, campaigns for European relief, for synagogues, for orphanages, for Yeshivahs—demands for big sums of money—these are projected with the customary ballyhoo and pyrotechnic effects. Then there is the unmitigated succession of petty vexations—raffles, programmes, theatre nights, food sales for less pretentious objects. The claims of the perpetrators of these annoyances are advanced in more subdued tones. But they are insistent and inescapable, and pervasive. Taken together, they form an immense volume of sound in a pleading pitch, which fills the air with its bulk.

The onlooker cannot but be impressed by the sonant evidence of communal energy. Here is a group of people constantly astir. Men and women, rich and poor are everlastingly active in minding the communal welfare. They must surely possess an extraordinarily high sense of public duty. The cultural quality of such a settlement must be of an advanced order.

Added to the unremitting campaigning tumult, there is also the hubbub of the fraternal and social play. There are the meetings and the programmes and the politics and the entertainments. To anyone making the rounds of the Jewish clubs and lodges it might appear that our public life is seething with activity and bubbling over with energy.

It takes, however, only a cursory examination to discover that Jewish group life in the big communities is not a rich, vibrant affair. Rather it is sluggish, anaemic, with only a localized outbreak of activity here and there. The masses are indifferent; impervious to ideas. They ply their trades and pursuits and are soundly selfish. They worry about the butcher's bills and the high tax on gasoline. They are interested in trade unionism insofar as the unions spell higher wages. They attend Zionist propaganda meetings when celebrities offer novelties and entertainments. They grow heated at the lodge meetings over lodge affairs because the lodges provide free medical service and burial grounds. They suffer the presence of collectors and plate rattlers because of their lack of energy to resist the will of the communal manipulators.

With all the turmoil in the communal arena the number of active operators is really very small. The wheel of the charities keeps on grinding. Only a few hands are engaged in turning it. There is Zionism, there is Hadassah—apparently an imposing edifice. There are only a handful of enthusiasts—the number can be counted on the fingers of two hands—who toil and slave to keep the grand structure from crumpling. Scan the names of the leading spirits in the various spheres of public work. The same familiar appellations. They are everywhere. Do not worry about the motives or psychoses of the communalists. The latter are the ones that feel the responsibility and bear the burdens. They get their compensations. They are human enough to need them.

There is a constant frenzy of excitement in our larger Jewish communities. It does not mean that there is a divine unrest quivering in the social frame. A small band of zealous souls are rampant. The bulk of the community is selfish and vulgar, and normal; just like the immobile egos around them that make up the mass of humanity.—A.B.B.

CANADIAN DEBATERS IN ENGLAND

Bernard M. Alexandor, McGill University debater, and Melvin Kenny, of Toronto, give their last two debates in London, England, next week, bringing their tour to an end. They have won every debate but two. Mr. Alexandor considers that the Oxford and Cambridge Unions possess groups of brilliant students, sons of the leading politicians but that the average British student is on a par with the Canadian. He remarked that there is more student interest in politics in London, and also more general interest in societies not immediately connected with studies.

Mr. Alexandor was greatly struck by Canadian students being much more conservative, there being practically no Socialists. The next term presidents of both Oxford and Cambridge societies will be socialists, as are the majority of the students, though belonging to the wealthier classes. He noted that in England, where the general outlook is Conservative, the universities are progressive; while in Canada, where the outlook is progressive, the universities are conservative and check too rapid progress—a wholesome brake in both cases. He was much impressed by the confidence shown in London in Canada's future and the great interest taken in the growing Canadian control of big concerns.

COMMENTARIES

By Rabbi Harry J. Stern, of Montreal
Associate Contributing Editor

MAJORITIES NEARLY ALWAYS WRONG

A majority is merely a working plan to decide upon policies in matters of general concern. It has nothing to do with the establishment of a distinction between right and wrong. As a matter of fact, where it comes to the question of progress and truth, majorities have nearly always been wrong. The torch-bearers of civilization were the few and not the many. If one reads history carefully and sympathetically he will soon discover that truth nearly always rests with the minority. In the history of religion, government and science we find that the majority ever attempted to place chains upon the feet of the chosen few who dared to march forward. Is not this the lesson to be learned from the struggle of the Maccabees against the mighty hosts of Antiochus Epiphanee?

EXPERT AND PHILOSOPHER

Someone defined the above as follows: "An expert is one who knows more and more about less and less, and a philosopher is one who knows less and less about more and more."

I believe these are clever definitions. The trouble with most of us is just this—we try to be experts and not philosophers. The philosopher deals with life in all its phases. The philosopher sees life from all angles. He therefore finds joy and romance in it. The expert is narrow. He seems to stand in a corner ever interested in himself. I believe we suffer to-day from too many specialists and experts, whether it be in education or medicine. The fine thing about the old family physician was just the fact that he was a philosopher more than an expert or specialist.

"THE UNKNOWN SANCTUARY"

Have you read the above book? It's a fascinating biography and ought to be read by every Jew. Pallière, orginally a Catholic, is to-day assistant rabbi in the Liberal Synagogue of Paris.

Pallière is a tireless worker in the cause of Israel. His labours in behalf of a Jewish Renaissance in France has won for him admiration. Omit hockey one evening and read his book.

TO "HIM"

I met "him" the first day I entered upon my ministry in Montreal. Our friendship grew. We are bound together by the ties of comradeship even as were Jonathan and David. My joys are his. We share each other's sorrows. We are friends.

He is modest, generous and kind. He is not found on the platform making speeches. His actions speak eloquently. Life has wrestled with "him" and he with life. Often life makes out of him a cynic. But he is calmed and softened by a fine sense of humour. Indeed he is deserving the good name of Hillel.

IT TOOK SIXTY-FIVE YEARS TO ARRIVE

George Mortimer Pullman studied for many years the problem of making journeys by rail more comfortable, resulting in the invention of what was known as the Pullman Palace Car in 1863.

True, these cars were crude in comparison with the luxurious present day sleeping cars, but evolution of the sleeping car has been largely the work of the originators, until to-day the "Chambrette" or single room sleeping car is one of their latest achievements. Experience the comfort and exclusive service they provide on your next trip to Montreal, leaving Toronto on the 10.00 and 11.00 p.m. trains of the Canadian National.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE A FEW MILES MAKE

Ontario covers an area of 407,262 square miles. It is over 1,000 miles in length and 885 miles in depth. In reasoning this out the variance of temperature is very great, so during the winter months, while you have a constant cold temperature and lots of snow in the northern parts, Southern Ontario is, so to speak, semi-tropical. There is also the phenomena aspect—a few years ago Southern Ontario had lots of snow, and winter and winter sports were enjoyed everywhere—not so now. To enjoy winter sports in Canada you must move to Northern Ontario or make a journey to our winter cities—Ottawa, Montreal or Quebec. The Highlands of Ontario is the natural playground of Ontario people—close at hand and developing rapidly.

Again the business world, year after year, is coming to require a holiday in winter as well as summer. Numerous desirable resorts are open in the Highlands, including Muskoka Beach and Lake of Bays district. These resorts are reached by Canadian National trains leaving Toronto at 8.33 a.m. except Sunday; 8.55 a.m. from Davenport Station; at 4.50 p.m. except Sunday, Davenport, 5.12 p.m. and 9.05 p.m. daily.

"CONFEDERATION" TRAIN TO EDMONTON ENSURES PLEASANT, COMFORTABLE JOURNEY

Canadian National Railway officials are being congratulated on having continued the popular "Confederation" in operation between Toronto and Edmonton.

This innovation has eliminated most of the delays experienced by travellers crossing the Prairies in the winter time as it provides a fast, through, comfortable service to Edmonton, via Winnipeg, Brandon, Regina and Saskatoon. By this route good connections are made to all important points by lines radiating from these cities.

The splendid equipment and courteous service—always a feature of the "Confederation"—ensure a pleasant journey without the discomforts of winter travel.

CANADIANS TURN TO FLORIDA FOR A CAREFREE WINTER SEASON

Semi-tropical Florida is again drawing large numbers of Canadians for the winter season. It is becoming more popular every year - principally because it is so near, its climate is so inviting, and it offers such an array of interesting sports and pastimes peculiar to that part of the country.

Where else but Florida can one enjoy better such an exciting novelty as Tarpon fishing . . . or aqua-planing . . . or speed-boating . . . or polo? Where else can one motor for miles through avenues shaded by graceful palms—by great citrus groves of ripening oranges and lemons - or along the shore of the Atlantic? There's golf, too!—all winter long.

Arrange now to spend your winter months in Florida—any Canadian National Railways Agent will gladly supply you with information about rates, routes and its resorts.

Every Friday

Are campaigns for funds losing their war-time flavour? The recent achievement in Montreal where the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies got more money than its objective called for seemed delightfully free from the language and harangue that have characterized former campaigns for money. It has long been the custom to employ the verbiage of the trench and battlefield but, happily, the time is coming when men asking money for the poor will not need to be artillerymen or advance guards. Also, although all who can give anything to charity are expected to do it and are approached for donations, the widow's mite was not glorified so boisterously in the Montreal campaign as it used to be. Those at the head of the campaign were willing to have it taken for granted that the smallest donation is ever welcome but that objectives are easiest reached by many big gifts. Allan Bronfman sounded a most melodious note when he begged his fellow Jews to "Let your standard of living set your standard of giving." There is a sentiment which must naturally appeal to all who are not rich and who may, as in the case of columnists, expect some day to reap the benefits of large-handed generosity on the part of others who won't miss it. This column, for example, has no false, giddy pride. It must be constrained to urge upon the rich the fact that they should let their standard of living set their standard of giving by all means. How else are rotundas built onto institutions for the benefit of indigent journalists, so-called?

Dr. Solomon Lowenstein, of the New York Federation, who addressed the Montreal campaign workers, deserves a place in the sun, too, for coming out in the open with the statement that it is invariably the rich few who must take care of the charities, not the masses. That places the burden exactly where it belongs. The masses may give with all their hearts and that is the way they do give and the manner in which a gift is given is important, et cetera, but it is the big donations from people who have much money that should be sought after always and extolled always loudly in public. The Montreal Federation campaign stands as a suitable inspiration to any Jewish community anywhere and a tribute to the Jewish community which carried it on to say nothing of the brilliance and judgment with which it was brought to a well-remunerated close by men who know how.

An associate editor of the Independenta Economica of Bucharest, Rumania, writing to the Nation says in part: "In Rumania there are at least three distinct Jewish minorities, each with its peculiar problems, so that no general solution is feasible. The Jews, too, are organized into a political party, whose leader is a conservative and has backed the present regime, the leaders enjoying the material benefits of the association while complaining against the chauvinistic policy of the same party. It is possible that in the circumstances the policy pursued by the Jewish minority was the best for itself; the conservative regime in Rumania had been in power for nine years, and it had to be dealt with. We also know that Mr. Filderman, the leader of the Jewish Party in Rumania, was almost blackmailed into allegiance to the present regime by Mr. Duca, the present Minister of the Interior. There were threats that the anti-Semitic League would not be curbed, as, indeed, it was not. Rather Mr. Fischer backed Mr. Filderman and obtained some tangible improvements in the situation, which, again from the immediate point of view, cannot be denied. Before this the policy of the United Jews of Rumania had been antagonistic to the Rumanian Government, and no tangible results had been obtained. But in the long run minority rights must spring from a more generous and all-pervading progressive doctrine backed by a new mentality. This is the hope that the National Peasant Party holds out. Under such a progressive rule the Jewish question would certainly be improved."

Jewish leaders who know about Rumanian affairs, among them Lucien Wolf, have expressed the opinion that the Peasant Party wants to see a friendly settlement of the Jewish problem. The new Maniu Government has given several indications of a desire to protect the Jewish citizenry from anti-Semitic disturbances and has retained at least one former minister of the Bratianu regime who in the past showed a willingness to adjust matters for the good of the Jews. Of course, the Jews have heard many times before this that their interests were going to be protected in every way and are not apt to believe everything they hear just because they are under a different regime.

But the writer of the letter to the Nation implies that the Jewish problem really would be nearer solution if the various Jewish minorities could only unite. But in order to unite, the Jewish minorities would have to forget their various differences and separate problems. And when will they ever want to do that? Don't ask! f.f.c.

Her tulle veil was draped over a coronet of orange blossoms, she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley, and her ornament was a gift from the groom, a diamond locket. Her sister, Miss Gertrude Abrahams, was gowned in white lace over pink taffeta with a pink floral wreath and carried pink roses. The groom's gift to her was a gold bracelet. Phillips Jacobs, of Boston, was best man. Mrs. Abrahams, mother of the bride, was in black lace over white taffeta, veiled in chiffon, with duchess lace toque trimmed with pale blue and gold sequins. The couple left for Atlantic City and Washington before going to live in Brookline, Mass., the bride travelling in tan broadcloth with velvet and Persian trimmings, ecru lace blouse and panne velvet hat with garniture of cream lace and ermine furs. Guests from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Franklin and the Misses Bessie and Theresa Franklin, of New York, parents and sisters of the groom; Miss Louise Bottstein, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. A. Abrahams, of Boston. The marriage of Miss Bessie Hansher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hansher, to M. Slabotsky was solemnized by Rev. Shapiro. The bride, wearing white crepe de chine over taffeta, with a bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley, was given away by her father. The bridesmaids were Miss May Bernstein, of Rochester, cousin of the bride; and Sarah and Bessie Graefsky, cousins of the groom; and Tillie and Sarah Miller, nieces of the bride. Flower girls were Ruth Wolfe, of New York, and Beatrice Hansher, of Toronto, in white frocks trimmed with pink and carrying pink carnations. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. M. Hansher and A. and H. Hansher, of Milwaukee; Mrs. E. Stone, sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. M. Wolfe and daughter, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Hansher and daughter, Beatrice, of Toronto.

Y'EH Or

Mose Liebowitz noticed that for three consecutive nights his friend Abe Levy kept every light in his home burning far into the night. Mose knew that Mrs. Levy and the family were out of town, and that only Abe remained at home. At last his curiosity could stand the mystery no longer, so he went over and asked Abe the reason for all the illumination. "Well," said Abe shyly, "my wife has been away for a month, and I have written to her that I have spent every evening at home since she left. I am afraid the gas meter will betray me, therefore I am trying to run it up." to the humble and the poor and how valuable such further ventures would be.

We have also watched with interest the appointment of a committee on Good Will between Christians and Jews, a committee with a paid executive financed by the church federation which has made genuine contributions to the effort of breaking down prejudice in Christian circles, and the initiative has come whence it should but alas, does not always come, from Christian circles. Good will meetings have been arranged in many communities with effect that will bear fruit in later years. But more important than these was the report of one of the federation officials on the Jewish situation in Roumania, wherein he pointed out that the Jewish minority was being subjected to persecution, discrimination and abuse and vindicated thereby the American Jewish protest. And still more significant was the announcement, an announcement that was given wide publicity, signed by its president and other leaders, following the blood murder accusation in Massena, N.Y., that the blood murder accusation in a foul myth and should be given no credence. These and other liberal actions have placed us among the admirers of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

We accordingly watched the recent deliberation of that great Christian body with interest. Its social justice committee, headed by Bishop Francis J. McConnel, the new president of the Council, asked that the following two resolutions be added to the social justice creed of the church:

"The renunciation of war and the refusal of the Church of Christ as an institution to be used as an instrument or an agency in the support of war."

"The removal of discriminations which prevent equal opportunity of development for all races and for the equal sharing and rights and privileges."

Both of these resolutions, certainly in harmony with the oft-expressed ideals of Christianity, and certainly in keeping with the personal convictions of Jesus, were, though they had their champions, referred to the 1932 meeting for further action. Among the delegates there were those who desired an outspoken and vigorous pronouncement on war, but orders with the proverbial pussyfooting cautioned prudence. The conservatives won out, and the resolutions were temporarily shelved. It was so at Cleveland at the convention of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. The social justice programme presented by laymen and rabbis was bitterly fought by reactionary laymen and rabbis. There the liberal elements won.

We do not invite comparison between the Union of Synagogue and that of churches. The resolutions before the church council were far more vigorous and thorough than those before the congregations. We merely note this to indicate the parallel tendencies in Jewish and Christian circles. We deplore the fact that the resolutions were shelved by the Church Council. Their enactment would have been a great moral victory for Christianity and would have indicated that religion is ready to atone somewhat for its prostitution in the last war. The Federal Council hesitated to take the bold step. Are those who hesitate spiritually lost?

THE SICK CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

An institution like the Sick Children's Hospital which heals the wounds and alleviates the misery of children of all creeds and faiths, merits the support of the entire community. This year was important in the life of that institution because of the opening of its convalescent home in Thistletown. How apparently hopelessly deformed children are restored to vigour, health and usefulness is one of the miracles that institution is achieving daily! Its larger facilities mean larger overhead and more expenses. We hope that the citizens of our community will recognize the increased service of the Sick Children's Hospital by increasing their subscriptions to it.

Rhoda, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo J. Neumann, 824 Wilson Avenue, was driving with her parents when their automobile was forced to stop, as the car in front had stalled. The driver was fuming, and Rhoda's father remarked, "That man certainly is excited about the trouble with his car." Little Rhoda answered, "Well, I don't see what he's worrying about! He's right near a garage."

Bank of Montreal Annual Meeting

Both Sir Charles Gordon, President, and Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, General Manager, at the annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal were decidedly optimistic as to the outlook for Canada and for the Bank. The latter paid some attention to the wave of speculation still existing and urged that while Canada was moving rapidly ahead, there was all the more need for moving cautiously.

In reviewing continued improvement in business, Sir Charles said in part:

"Reviewing the business situation in Canada, one cannot but remark how rapidly the basic sources of our national wealth are widening. The concurrence of a wide variety of raw material with water powers on a truly gigantic scale gives Canada extraordinary opportunities for all-round development, and the fact that these opportunities are now being realized is resulting in the establishment of primary enterprises involving large investments of capital and contributing in marked degree to the general activity."

"There seems to be a somewhat widespread idea that Canadian banks have transferred large amounts of money to New York for employment in call loans. That notion is wholly erroneous. The policy of the Bank of Montreal, and I may say I believe this applies to all Canadian banks, has long been to carry in New York a substantial proportion of ready reserves or quick assets. No funds, however, are ever transferred to New York or London to be loaned on call until every legitimate need of our own country has been carefully examined and, if at all possible, complied with. Our loans there have been less than they were a year ago."

General Manager's Address

Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, the General Manager, said in part:

"Canada as a whole has enjoyed more prosperity than ever before. At the commencement of 1928 a succession of good harvests has already placed the country on a prosperous footing, and the position has been further improved this year by good average yields of the staple crops in all the older provinces, while the Prairie Provinces have far surpassed their previous records. In industrial activity an extraordinary enlargement has shown itself in construction works, many being of a most impressive character. These include the further exploitation of those great natural assets, water powers, minerals and forests. Also, we have seen a further increase in revenue from the tourist trade, now ranking high among Canada's business activities.

"In Western Canada the year has been remarkable, not only for the record grain crops in the Prairie Provinces, but also for a reduction in harvesting cost per bushel, due chiefly to good weather and partly to the growing effectiveness of agricultural machinery.

"These developments show the Canadian farmer to-day as a man of affairs, who is rapidly bringing his methods up to the standard of highly developed urban industries."

Margaret Lowengrund, well-known Philadelphia artist, held her first American exhibition at the Kleeman-Thorman Galleries in New York.

It Came to Pass That——

This CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW feature must prove of absorbing interest to all its readers, especially the young folks. It is a history of the Jewish people through centuries recorded by days. Buy a loose-leaf note book, clip this account and paste it in. If you do this every week, in time you will possess a hand-book of value. The historian is Dr. Cecil Roth, of London, England, fellow of the Royal Historical Society, author and essayist.

DECEMBER 14TH

Foundation of the Board of Deputies of British Jews, 1760. For some years it had been customary for the aristocrats of the Portuguese Congregation to designate Deputados to approach the Government upon matters of importance. One such election was made on the accession of George III to express their homage and devotion to the new sovereign. This was satisfactorily effected. But a couple of weeks later Aaron Franks, in the name of the Ashkenazic Jews, protested at their neglect on this momentous occasion, and a joint "German Secret Committee for Public Affairs" was nominated by the Great Synagogue in Duke's Place and Hanbro, in Magpie Alley (the New World as yet barely established). This action was recognized as being reasonable, and on December 14 a motion was passed by the Deputados to the effect that whenever any public affair should offer that may interest the two nations they would communicate to the Committees of the Dutch Jews' Synagogues what they thought proper should be done. From this time onwards, there has always been co-operation among all sections of English Jewry on matters of common interest, and out of the Deputados of 1760 has grown the modern "Board of Deputies of British Jews," comprising the representatives of congregations throughout the Empire.

DECEMBER 15TH

Auto at Lisbon, 1647. Of those who figured in it, several were Portuguese subjects who had been captured during the recent reconquest of Brazil, where they had thrown off the disguise of Christianity during the brief interlude of Dutch rule. Six persons in all suffered the extreme penalty. One of these was Isaac de Castro Tartas, a youthful native of Guienne, who had emigrated to Brazil, been captured at Bahia, and sent back to Europe for trial. Before the Inquisition he stoutly proclaimed his adherence to Judaism, and all efforts to shake his belief had utterly failed. As the death agony came upon him in the flames, he called out in amazingly clean tones the Jewish confession of faith, the Shema, with the last word of which he expired. This scene created an indelible impression upon the mind of contemporaries. In Amsterdam, a memorial sermon was delivered by Saul Levi Morteira (Spinoza's teacher), and several local poets wrote elegies in his honour. In Lisbon for several years the populace repeated the impressive cry which they had heard issuing from the flames, until the Inquisition intervened to prevent it. So far was a repetition of this scene dreaded that, according to report, it was determined to cease the practice of burning heretics publicly at the stake. The practice continued, however, for over a century more.

DECEMBER 16TH

Jews leave France, 1394. The Edict of Expulsion, which had been issued on September 17 of that year, did not take effect immediately; for a few months were granted for them to sell their property and pay their debts. This was not made any the more easy by a subsequent order by which Christian debtors were absolved from paying their dues. Ultimately, when the time limit was up, they were escorted to the frontier by the Royal provosts. The refugees made their way, some to Provence (whence they were expelled in the following century), and some to Italy, where they formed about Asti, a small group of congregations which still follow the old French rite. The history of the Jews in France was now virtually at an end almost until the eve of the Revolution.

DECEMBER 17TH

Massacre at Bykhov, 1649. Though peace had been negotiated between the King of Poland and the arch persecutor, the Cossack Hetman Chmielnicki, in August, 1649, the trials of the Jews did not cease. In the trail of his army there were left bands of irregulars who lived at free quarters on the countryside and preyed especially upon the Jews. In the township of Bykhov, near Mogilev, a worse fate awaited them. They were summoned, in the name of the Church, to embrace the orthodox faith. Three hundred who persisted in refusal were massacred. The rest preserved in their hearts their fidelity to their old religion, like the Marranos in Spain, and many years after there are records of their return to Judaism.

DECEMBER 18TH

Edict of Expulsion against Jews of Bohemia, 1744. During the War of Austrian Succession, the Jews had displayed their usual degree of loyalty to the Government, those of Prague serving against the enemy during the siege, even upon the Day of Atonement. On the conclusion of the campaign, they were accused nevertheless of treason, and the Empress Moria Theresa was induced to sign a decree of banishment against the Jews of the kingdom (December 18, 1744, for Bohemia; January 2, 1745, for Moravia). Terrible severity was shown in the enforcement of this order. The Jews of Prague were forced to leave the town in the depths of winter for the neighbouring villages, from which they were expected to depart as soon as possible. A general commercial stagnation followed upon this cruel and short-sighted action. What was perhaps more effective, the Governments of England and of Holland, with a generosity towards the Jews as yet without precedent, made diplomatic advances at the Court of Vienna in protest against such inhumanity. As a result, the Empress was induced to revoke her decree, excepting for the community of Prague, which was especially suspected (May 15, 1745). Only some years later was it possible to re-establish this, one of the oldest and most important communities in Europe.

DECEMBER 19TH

Death of David Tevele Schiff, 1791. A native of Frankfort, he had been appointed to the Rabbinate of the Great Synagogue in London on the retirement of Hart Lyon. He was a scholar and preacher of repute, but above all a man of iron will, well suited to the difficult period of adjustment through which the congregation was passing. Twice, in 1765 and in 1790, he witnessed the enlargement and rededication of the synagogue. There is still extant the sermon which he preached on the recovery of George III from illness. But perhaps his most memorable act was his steadfast refusal of the application of Lord George Gordon, the erstwhile apostle of Protestantism, for admission to Judaism. After Tevele Schiff's death, Moses Myers, of the New Synagogue, acted as Chief Rabbi for some years, until the appointment of Solomon Herschell (Hart Lyon's son) in 1802.

DECEMBER 20TH

Reorganization of Leghorn community, 1715. From its foundation by the charter of 1593, it had rapidly grown, until it had become one of the most important Jewish settlements in Europe. It now received what was to prove its final constitution. The hegemony of the Spanish and Portuguese families was abolished. Henceforth, any Jew, of whatever origin, was eligible for a place in the governing council. This was to consist of sixty members, whose names were to be approved by the Grand Duke, and whose seat was to pass on by inheritance from father to son. Twenty members serving in rotation of this governed the community year by year, the whole body being convoked only in matters of supreme importance. Three members, called "censors," were to supervise the internal affairs of the community, the civil authorities being enjoined to execute any punishment against individual members which they might decree. This constitution remained in force, with slight modifications, down to comparatively recent times.

SEE CANADA FIRST

The twin coastal cities, Vancouver and Victoria, at this time of the year appeal with endless charm to the holiday makers, wanderers and tired business men and women, for the weather is ideal and the foliage in the gardens and parks of wondrous colour. Not a day passes, too, but sees the twelve golf courses gay with happy and enthusiastic players, while riding in the early mornings and afternoons is particularly favoured. There are splendid motor highways on Vancouver Island, and innumerable ones running into Vancouver City from all directions. The winter season's attractions include theatres and concerts of the highest calibre, while the Hotel Vancouver at Vancouver and the world renowed Empress at Victoria are the centres of the social and commercial activities of the two cities and districts. During the winter the Canadian Pacific Railway operates the only through train from Toronto to Vancouver. The "Vancouver Express" leaves the Union Station every night at 9.00 and reaches the coast four days later. Comfortable and convenient connections can be made with all western points by using this famous train.

NORTHERN ONTARIO CANADA

Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, minerals, water, power, fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it, and in return will give health, comfort and prosperity.

What settlers say of the soil, climate farming and forest life, is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honourable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a title to these rich agricultural lands are also given.
